ELAMOS: Extended Tsunami Early Alert System for Indoor Public Buildings

Abstract– Tsunami is a catastrophic disaster which causes huge number of victims and destruction of buildings in the affected area as the impact of massive high-speed sea wave sweeping the land. Indonesia is a country which is vulnerable with tsunami attack since it consists of thousands of islands surrounded by the seas, and located in the area where active tectonic plates encounter. In the last 25 years, at least six tsunamis attacked Indonesia regions, where the last fatal one happened in Sulawesi island, September 2018. Indonesia government have been aware and prepared tsunami alert system which sensors are placed on the sea to trigger an alarm if a tsunami happens. The alarm will be pronounced by loudspeakers at some open public areas so the residents can hear and be prepared with the disaster. But the weakness of the existing system is it cannot be heard by people located far away from those loudspeakers, especially if they are in the buildings. This study aims to create a system which can extend and deliver tsunami alarm to public buildings using the Internet connection. The system is successfully implemented and installed in the Disaster Management Bureau and some hotels in Bali, Indonesia.

Keywords: disaster management system; tsunami early warning syetem, tsunami alert.

I. INTRODUCTION

Tsunami is one of the most fatal and destructive disasters on earth. It is in the form of giant sea wave which propagates from the sea to the seashore and frequently enters the land kilometers away from the shoreline [1]. The cause of tsunami can be earthquakes centered under the sea, underwater volcanic eruptions, underwater landslides, or meteor strikes at sea [2]. Some deadliest tsunami had happened in the last 20 years, for example Aceh (Indonesia) in 2004 which took death toll of 140,000 people [3], Tohoku (Japan) in 2011 causing more than 15,000 death [4], and the newest tragedy struck in Palu (Indonesia) in 2018 where more than 2000 lives were taken due to severe destruction.

Meanwhile, aftermath the Aceh tragedy, Indonesia government were aware of the urgency of having a tsunami alert system. A set of buoys is installed on sea surface to sense the sea condition, and the data are sent through satellite communication continuously, which this system named InaTEWS (Indonesia Tsunami Early Warning System) [5]. This system is effective to detect abnormal sea wave that can be suspected as a tsunami. There are loudspeakers placed on some open areas in order to announce tsunami warning based on InaTEWS sensing. However, this system has a weakness where the announcement cannot be heard by people located far away from the loudspeakers. They who are in buildings also cannot hear the alarm as well.

This study proposes an extension system for existing tsunami alert system (InaTEWS), so the alarm can be heard from the people located in indoor buildings, called Elamos. When InaTEWS gives alarm informing tsunami is happening (or in a regular tsunami drill), an officer in Disaster Management Bureau (DMB) will confirm the alarm and trigger Elamos to the buildings where its client devices are installed.

II. METHODOLOGY

A. Architectural Design

Elamos' system architecture consists of three parts: Central Site, Server Site, and Client Site (Figure 1). At the Central Site, a personal computer with a web browser is provided for triggering alert to the Client Site. The original tsunami alert basically comes from InaTEWS and should be confirmed by DMB officer before it is announced officially, so triggering Elamos should be done manually.

Server Site is the heart of Elamos system, which located in a data center. It contains a website application that should be accessed by Central Site. When a tsunami happens, Central Site should trigger the alarm button in Elamos website, so the server will update its status and send it to Client Site.

At the Client Site, a client device is provided in order to receive the alert from the server, and then ring the loudspeaker with a certain sound file, announcing tsunami warning. The client device consists of a mini computer system (Raspberry Pi) which connected to the Internet, and a loudspeaker or connected to the building's sound system. If it is in a hotel, the sound can be integrated with each room's sound system, so people in hotel rooms can hear the warning also.

B. Application Flow

Elamos application works with procedures as follows:

1. If InaTEWS signals that tsunami happens (or when a regular tsunami drill is performed), then DMB officer should check and confirm whether it is true or just false alarm.
2. If the alarm is true, then DMB officer should open the Elamos website, and press alarm button to be sent to the buildings in certain areas that maybe impact from the tsunami. Elamos will set the tsunami_flag in its database to 1 and record the event.
3. Client device checks every 10 seconds (with pull method) and will find that the tsunami_flag value in Elamos server is 1, so it rings the loudspeaker in Client Site with the tsunami warning. The alarm will be ringing for about three minutes.
4. After alarm ends, the tsunami_flag in Elamos server is reset back to 0.

The application flow of Elamos is depicted in the flowchart of Figure 2.

III. IMPLEMENTATION

A. Central Site

The Central Site is located at DMB office in Denpasar city, capital city of Bali province. It consists of a personal computer with the following specifications:

- Operating system: Windows 10.
- RAM: 4GB.
- CPU: Intel i3 processor.
- Storage: 500 GB.

A Google Chrome web browser is used to open the Elamos application (Figure 3). There is no specific logical script is embedded in Central Site since its task is only for triggering the alarm through the web browser.

B. Server Site

Server Site is the heart of Elamos system. It contains the server application which should be opened and executed when the tsunami alert is needed. The server is located on Telkom Data Center in Jakarta, which specifications are as follows:

- Operating system: Linux Debian.
- Database: MariaDB 10.
- Web server: NodeJS v6.14.3.
- Programming language: JavaScript.
- Hardware: 4 core CPU, 8 GB RAM, and 160 GB storage.

The database structure of Elamos consists of some important tables:

- Table `ts_group`: contains data area that includes hotels within the area.
- Table `hotels`: list of hotels.
- Table `ts_devices`: list of devices client connected to the server.
- Table `ts_devices_history`: devices information status online/offline history.

Some application scripts and folders in Elamos server are:

- Script `app.js`: main script executed by webserver.
- Folder `assets/`: folder containing css, js, and images.
- Folder `routes/`: folder containing controller and routing information
- Folder `views/`: folder containing template view.

C. Client Site

At the Client Site, a client device is used to receive the alert and then a connected loudspeaker will play the sound file with tsunami alert (a man's voice) in three languages: English, Mandarin, and Bahasa. The Client Site device actually is a Raspberry Pi (Figure 4) with the following specifications:

- Operating system: Linux Ubuntu Raspberry.
- Scripts path: `/opt/ews/apps/`.
- Script name: `apps.js`.
- Programming language: JavaScript.
- Hardware: 4× ARM Cortex-A53, 1.2GHz CPU, 1GB LPDDR2 (900 MHz) RAM, and 10/100 Ethernet, 2.4GHz 802.11n wireless networking.

IV. RESULTS

We can login by using admin user then the home page, which is the Dashboard page, can be seen that it shows the list of Client Site areas, their status (OK means connected, NOK means not connected), and the map of Bali island.

Below the list, there are three buttons: TSUNAMI, TEST, and STOP. TSUNAMI button's purpose is for sending the tsunami alarm, meanwhile, TEST button is for sending tsunami testing alert. In Denpasar Bali, every 26th of the month, DMB perform tsunami testing alarm to check whether their system is running well and for the people to be aware and doing rehearsal if needed. STOP button is for stopping the current alarm.

The hamburger button at the upper left corner basically is for administrator menu: dashboard, history, and other content management system (CMS) functions. If we press it, some menus will appear: Dashboard, History, Devices, Hotels, Area, and Settings (Figure 7).

- The Dashboard menu is the home page after user logins, which shows the Client Site list and the map (Figure 6).
- The History menu shows the history of events (tsunami alert, test, and back to normal) which can be exported to a file as well.
- The Device menu is to show the list of Client Site and the information related like MAC address, client version, location, and last status.
- The Hotel menu is to list hotels (Client Site) which already registered in Elamos (since the early phase of Elamos implementation in Bali is for hotels). In here, the administrator can add new hotel if a new Client Site is joining Elamos.
- The Area menu is to list areas which contain Client Site in certain geographical area. Usually, an area groups client sites in the same geographical area. The administrator can also add new Area here if desired.
- The Setting menu is for credential setting and alarm sound file setting.

Elamos system have been implemented since August, 2018 and successfully tested during monthly tsunami alert drills by DMB Bali every 26th, August until October 2018.

V. CONCLUSION

This study aims to build an extended tsunami alert to indoor buildings, using existing DMB's tsunami alert system. It consists of three parts: Central Site, Server Site, and Client Site. The Central Site is located at Bali DMB office in Denpasar city which has the task to trigger Elamos alert if tsunami strikes or in monthly tsunami drill through web application. The trigger is done manually by DMB officer. The Server Site contains web application and database which should be accessed by Central Site to activate tsunami alarm. Client Site is the client of this system, located at indoor buildings which will receive the alert and ring the loudspeaker attached, with tsunami alert in three languages (English, Mandarin, and Bahasa). This system has been successfully implemented at many hotels as the Client Site, in Denpasar city and the surrounding areas.
