

ABSTRACT

Car steering courses are service providers to teach and provide training on how to drive a car properly and correctly. There are quite a number of car steering courses that have been established, but they are still difficult to find because people have to find the place directly to do the course. Website is a collection of pages in a domain that contains various information that can be accessed online.

With the problem of the complexity of getting a car steering course, then Kurstir is the solution to overcome it. Kurstir is a website-based steering course application system. Kurstir provides services for consumers to choose a steering course package and their mentor online. Consumers and mentors can also determine The training ground itself and the time can be determined according to the agreement between the consumer and the mentor. The existence of this website-based courier application aims to make it easier for consumers who want to take car steering courses so that they can be more efficient in time and place.
