An invoice is a document commonly used as proof of a purchase or sale transaction. The document contains data or information on the list of goods, the name of the goods, the price of the goods or services and the amount of payment to be paid by the buyer. In Indonesia, some terms such as sales invoice or purchase invoice actually refer to almost the same thing, namely a proof of sale and purchase document. Business and business are always related to the creation and receipt of these document data and even travel documents. For this reason, a safe and ready-to-work automation technology system is needed. The full-featured Billing application provides answers and solutions to the latest business needs.
