

ABSTRACT

Websites are one of the most popular and frequently visited sources of information in recent years. During the pandemic, the increasing use of the website was due to activities such as studying, working, and other activities carried out at home. One of them is learning about the basics of the Islamic religion, because it is very impossible to study outside because of the pandemic, many people prefer to learn through online media, one of the media is the website. The purpose of this research is to help schools to get options for learning media during online teaching and learning activities. The research method used is User Centered Design (UCD) with the hope that the website can be useful and easy to use for users. The method used in testing user satisfaction is the System Usability Scale (SUS) method. For the results of calculations on the questionnaire a total of 31 respondents got a value of 82,41935484. Where the score can be categorized as good