

ABSTRACT

Campus teaching is one of program from Ministry of Education, Culture, Research, and Technology. In this program, students have the responsibility to help school in the teaching process, technological adaptation, improving literacy and numeracy, and administration. This program provides opportunities for students as agents of change to build and provide good change in marginalized from unbalanced development. The challenge in this program is to face and guide students to do learning in the classroom. Innovation is needed so that students do not get bored quickly in learning that takes place in class. For this reason, learning is carried out by applying numeracy literacy using an independent curriculum and technological adaptation. The results of such application proved to be effective with the enthusiasm of students during the learning process.
